

Who we are...

Cinch Networks is a local company proudly owned and operated in Calgary, Alberta. Cinch Networks operates in Calgary, and the surrounding areas and prides it's self on providing local assistance to area business. Cinch Networks is operated by Ryan McGillivray and Josh Renneberg, who between them have more than a decade of experience in the IT industry. Their professional experience ranges from providing Internet and data services for small, medium and large commercial and industrial clients, to network administration and desktop support, as well as running the IT operations and design for a leading Internet service provider. This wide range of technical expertise and experience, along with our personally selected partners allows Cinch Networks to offer the very best service and support to our customers.

Hiring Cinch Networks to manage your information systems ensures you will not have to worry about IT problems and will enable you and your staff to focus on your business.

How we operate...

Cinch offer two options for support.

Call-in as needed service - The call-in as needed service allows our clients who have existing IT support staff, but at times require more manpower or a specific professional skill set that isn't available through current staff to take advantage of Cinch Networks services as their business needs dictate.

Scheduled on going support - This service option is often the choice of smaller to medium business who require IT support but do not require the services of a full time employee. Cinch Networks will design a custom support package based on a network audit and customer requirements and our recommendations.

Why hire a consultant?

In today's high speed world the requirements for IT professionals are rapidly increasing. IT services are very important for many small and medium sized businesses but often there is not enough need to hire a fulltime IT professional. If you are looking for either IT support or extra help for your current IT support, professional contracting with Cinch Networks consultants gets you all the support you require to keep your business operating at its best and you aren't breaking the bank to do it. Cinch Networks can develop a scheduled support contract for ongoing support. This will enable us to provide an on going service to keep your business running smoothly.
